

early protection and liberty of general government. It is the character of her people of emerging through barbarism to civilization, in freedom, law, christianised life. It will be constitution, conferring on either patronage, nor the her legislation, which is liberal and wise. It will ordinance of 1787. That North Western liberty was theirs. It had guaranteed liberty of conscience—the jury—the right of equal and the inviolability of private property. It had declared that "no validity of contracts, without fraud, should ever authority within the territories proclaimed, "that schools education, should forever be the plain reason, that real knowledge, are necessary, and the happiness visions of that ordinance to the cause of humanity in its operation upon the millions, who in all inhabit these States, is the soil northwest, of the incapable of sustaining a servitude, as the framers found it within the slave-holding States, there no desire to meddle.—upon the subject with cold hearted to contemplate ideas as men and as Americans, which our brethren of d with us in the same n, may feel it to be their true interest, to suppressed and down trodden that we countenance ed by some, that human self an evil, but because s an institution beyond the control alone of people of the several states. There the conventional Federal Constitution they were compelled to.

But surely it is a matter no less than of honor in laying the foundations have been choking up our rivers, and engulfing our steamboats; our commerce and our lives,

She has also entered and proclaims her protest against that odious and oft-rejected subtreasury system re-enacted at the last session of Congress, not only because it dangers the currency, renders the public treasury insecure and magnifies the powers of the self-constituted Monarch of the U. States, but because it inevitably tends to drain the specie of the country from Ohio and all the interior states of the Union, to the great seaports, where the revenues of the nation are collected, and where, according to the constitutional veto system of administering the government, they are to be disbursed also.

Ohio furthermore claims the right to declare that by reason of her great natural resources for manufacturing, her superabundance of food and her scarcity of fabrics, her inland position, where the cost of importation of foreign goods, and especially of the exportation of her own agricultural productions must, if continued, prove forever a heavy tax upon her labor, she has been induced to invest large sums in manufacturing and mechanical pursuits. That unlike the other establishments of some of her sister States, these branches of industry are in that infant state requiring protection. That she has no confidence in a foreign market for her great staples except in seasons of starvation abroad like the present. That she must have home manufactures and a home market. That she never will submit to free trade and direct taxation. That the people were prosperous under the tariff of 1842; and that she believes that not only the revenues of the country but all her industrial interests demand its immediate restoration.

Deriving what lessons of experience we may from the present condition and past history of the State of Ohio, her true policy seems to be sufficiently obvious. She requires no important measure of legislation at the present session of her General Assembly.

Let her great currency and revenue laws, deliberately sanctioned as they have been by the voice of her people stand with such indispensable amendments if any as experience has shown to be just and necessary.

Let her Colleges, Asylums and Schools, continue to receive at your hands such consideration and support as their great importance demands.

mend the interests of Ohio to the wisdom of her legislature, praying that Almighty Being who rules in the armies of Heaven and amongst the inhabitants of the earth, who guided our fathers to the shores of the new world, who made bare his arm in our defense on the battle fields of the Revolution, and went out before our pioneer ancestors in this Western wilderness as a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night, that he will not risit upon us our manifold national transgressions, that he will give to our rulers wisdom and our people peace, and that in a time to come he will be the god of our children as in the days of old he was the God of our fathers.

Dec. 12, 1846. WILLIAM BEBB.

DEMOCRATIC COURIER

FINDLAY, JANUARY 2, 1846.

In consequence of the extraordinary stage of water we have received no papers from the east or south since Tuesday.

The river is fifteen inches higher to-day, than it has ever been known to be before:

THE Messages.

We lay before our readers, in to day's paper, the conclusion of the President's Message, and all of Bebb's Inaugural. What a contrast is in those documents. The former is clear, plain and statesman-like, the latter low, traitorous, and hypocritical. Never has the Gubernatorial chair of Ohio been so disgraced—so polluted—as by Bebb's occupancy of it.

To cap the climax, and fill up the iniquity his message, he closes it with a hypocritical prayer—a solemn mockery of the Deity—a petition offered up by a wretch devoid of patriotism, honor, moral principle, and every thing that constitutes an upright man.

The meanest thing we have noticed, except Bebb's Inaugural, is that the editor of the Tuscarawas Advocate, a federal print at New Philadelphia, suppressed all that part of the President's Message which relates to the Mexican War. He would not publish it lest the villainy of him and his party should be exposed.

The regiment called upon from Pennsylvania is now at Pittsburg, and ready for Mexico. Government has called for another Regiment from this State.